Stage Shows

In the arena of entertainment, stage plays an important role for attracting the masses for particular kind of action. So, the stage show simply stands for a designated space for the carrying out of staging or theatrical production. The stage assists as a place for role players or performers and a centre of attraction for the members of the audience.

From architectural point of view, the feature of stage and its theme based shows may differ in its architectural design. However, stage may consist of a platform which is usually has raised level so that the audience from all corners of stage must be able to view the shows.

The stage may be permanent or temporary or adjustable depends on what kinds of shows have to be performed at where and what place. But when it comes to the performance of the shows in a theatre or other building where such stage shows are held at regular interval, then permanent stage has become as one of its essential feature of such theater or building.
